

The Constitution protects the right of the American people to keep and bear arms. As the experience of the District of Columbia clearly demonstrates, restrictive gun control laws are not the cure for violent crime. Instead, I support tough criminal sentencing and better enforcement of existing laws as the best solution to the problem of crime in America. Throughout my service in Congress, I have opposed new gun control measures and supported legislation that restores our Second Amendment rights.

 [go back to "On the Issues" main page ]